Sorbian Publications, 1693-1853

IDC Publishers is pleased to present a collection that consists of Sorbian books, periodicals, and brochures from the Biblioteka Rossiiskoi Akademii Nauk (Library of the Russian Academy of Sciences) in St. Petersburg. This collection provides access to works that are not, or are only very rarely, available to Western scientists. Sorbian Books, 1693-1853 provides access to the religious, historical, and linguistic heritage of Sorbian culture.

Sorbian writings

Sorbian writings are the cultural heritage of a small West Slavic language group that used to be spoken in what is now south-eastern Germany. It is closely related to Polish, Kashubian, Czech, and Slovak, and is still used in Upper and Lower Lusatia. This is the first time that this collection of Sorbian works, comprising 64 books and 5 periodicals dating from the end of the seventeenth to the nineteenth century, is being published. The materials presented in this collection are written in Upper and Lower Sorbian, Latin, and German.

Exclusive collection

The first extensive written Sorbian texts – translations of the religious literature of the Reformation – were composed in the sixteenth century. This collection contains the oldest works on Sorbian linguistics, for example, De Originibus Linguae Sorbicae by A. Frenceli, Vocabularium Latino-serbicum by J. Swetlik, and fourteen Bibles in Upper and Lower Sorbian. Sorbian literature started flourishing in the end of the eighteenth century after being strongly influenced by the ideas of Enlightenment. Writings from the beginning of the nineteenth century, such as educational brochures, early magazines, and scientific monographs, reflect the period of the national renaissance of Sorbian culture. Such periodicals as Serbska Jutnicka, Jutnitzka, Serbski Nowinkar, etc. are almost complete, which demonstrates the exclusiveness of this collection. A collection of seven Wittenberg brochures Jadno pratkowane na nezelu, issued by a group of young Sorbian translators, strongly influenced the development of Sorbian literary language. They are extremely rare and practically unknown to Western scientists. The collection also contains Pjesnicki hornych a delnych Luziskich Serbow – a unique publication of Sorbian folk songs and tales collected by L. Haupt and J.E. Smoler.

Translations of The Bible

The pride of the collection is fourteen translations of the Bible into Upper and Lower Sorbian. Because of the religious division of Sorbs, the Bible has been translated into two languages – Upper Sorbian, which was meant for Catholics (printed in Bautzen/ Budeshin) and Lower Sorbian - for Reformed (printed in Cottbus/ Chosechobus). One can find here the very first and complete translation into Upper Sorbian, dated 1728. First examples of Lower Sorbian, which are translations of the Old and New Testament date back to 1796 and 1709 (the latter item used to belong to Prince Aleksei, son of Peter the Great).

The Russian Academy of Sciences Library (BAN)

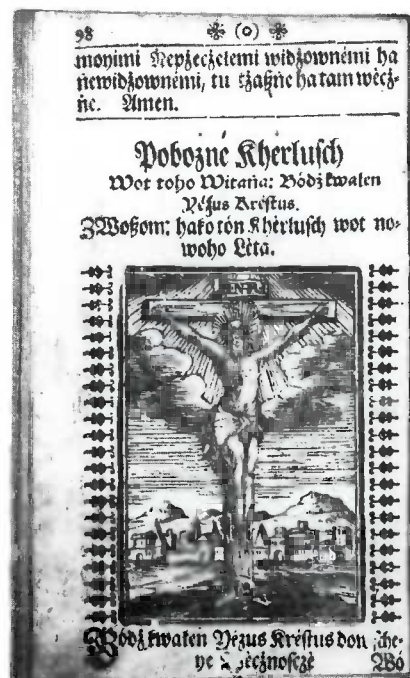

BAN is the oldest library in Russia and one of the biggest libraries in the world. It consists of three sections – Russian, Slavic and Foreign, which store more than 20,000,000 volumes. The Slavic section of BAN is a universal information source for researchers in Slavic Studies. It contains around 270,000 volumes, printed between the 17th century and 1930 in all Slavic languages, except Russian. The most valuable items of the Slavic section have been acquired between the end of the 19th and the beginning of the 20th century.

Sorbian Publications, 1693-1853 is the oldest part of a vast Sorbian collection of BAN. Today the Russian Academy of Sciences Library owns 271 Sorbian books and 22 Sorbian periodicals, which were collected between 1900 and 1920. Sorbian materials arrived in BAN in several different ways. A part of the collection was donated by linguists A. Muka (1854-1932) and I.I. Sreznevskii (1812-1880) from their private collections, and some were obtained from the Russian linguist A. L. Petrov in 1924. The rest of the collection comes from various sources, starting with the year 1908.

The collection is very rare, as fascists destroyed the central archive and library of Sorbs in 1937.

Slavonic Bibles

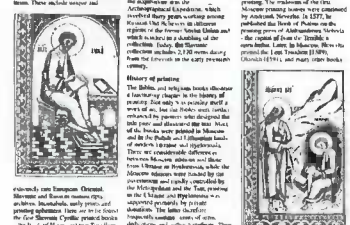

Early Printed Cyrillic Books from the Lomonosov Moscow State University Library

This catalogue represents the earliest portion of the collection of Slavonic early printed books of the Moscow University Library. It consists of forty Slavonic Bibles and Cyrillic religious books printed in the fifteenth and sixteenth centuries, including beautiful editions of Gospels, New Testaments, Acts and Epistles, and Psalms. This invaluable collection is an indispensable source of information for all those studying the history and intellectual tradition of Russia and Eastern Europe.

The Moscow University Library
The Moscow University Library, which currently houses more than eight million volumes, was founded in 1755 and has since then been continuously expanding its holdings. The most valuable part of its holdings belongs to the Department of Rare Books and Manuscripts, whose collections comprise more than 200,000 items. These include ancient and medieval manuscripts, printed books, and manuscripts from the 15th to the 19th centuries.

Slavonic Bibles
The Department Library's earliest collection of Slavonic early printed books is the group of Slavonic Bibles, printed and translated from the Greek text. The earliest of these is the Slavonic Bible printed in Moscow in 1492. This Bible is the first printed book in Slavonic and one of the earliest of its kind in the world. It was printed by Ivan Fedorov, the first Russian printer, in the printing house he had founded in Moscow in 1492. The Bible is written in Church Slavonic and is based on the Greek text of the Bible. It is a beautiful example of early Russian printing and is a valuable source of information for the study of the history of the Russian Church and the development of the Russian language.

Other early printed books
The Department Library also has a collection of other early printed books in Slavonic, including Gospels, New Testaments, Acts and Epistles, and Psalms. These books were printed in Moscow and other parts of Russia in the 15th and 16th centuries. They are written in Church Slavonic and are based on the Greek text. They are beautiful examples of early Russian printing and are a valuable source of information for the study of the history of the Russian Church and the development of the Russian language.

EARLY PRINTED BIBLES

Editor: Prof. F. Büsser, Zurich University

This collection of 300 Bibles and Bible Translations from the fifteenth and sixteenth centuries is the first comprehensive collection of its kind, bearing unique testimony to the efforts of several generations of scholars, artists, publishers, and printers who produced the Book of Books. It contains editions of the Holy Scripture and the Old and New Testament in the original and modern European languages, as well as polyglot editions. An additional list with Philological Tools from the sixteenth century, consisting of grammars and dictionaries facilitates the usage of the bibles.

Editor: Dr. A.G. Cross

18th CENTURY RUSSIAN STUDIES

Advisor: Prof. A.G. Cross, University of Cambridge

This collection includes a number of eighteenth century editions of works by individual authors, and several important journals, as well as many significant nineteenth and twentieth century editions, journals and secondary works of a biographical, critical or historical nature. It represents an excellent basic collection of sources for research into a great number of areas, such as culture, history, jurisprudence, literature, theatre and religion.

With a recent supplement the number of editions of the work of eighteenth century authors has been strengthened considerably, and the already strong bibliographical section in the second catalogue has been significantly augmented.

All titles in the collection have been filmed in the State Historical Library in Moscow and the National Library of Russia in St. Petersburg.
