Travel Descriptions of South Africa, 1711-1938

The Amsterdam library of the Netherlands-South African Society (NZAV) owns an astonishingly rich collection of travel descriptions, works on ethnography and missionary history, and other rare books on South Africa. IDC Publishers is proud to announce the publication of a microfiche collection that makes the most interesting titles available to the international scholarly community.

At the end of the nineteenth century, a group of prominent Dutch academics, politicians, and businessmen founded the NZAV in order to promote cultural and economic relations between the two countries. It soon proved to be a success: Within 20 years, the NZAV had over 6000 paid-up members and had become the driving force behind the establishment and maintenance of private relations between the Netherlands and South Africa.

In 1905, the NZAV initiated the foundation of the South African library in Amsterdam. It started quite modestly, with a collection of about 800 titles. The library was primarily meant to be used by "those who want to acquaint themselves with African history." It held rare volumes, such as the journals of Olfert Dapper (1668), Abraham Bogaert (1711), Peter Kolb (1727), and Nicolaas van Kampen (1828).

Over the years, the collection grew rapidly as many NZAV members bequeathed their private collection to the library. In 1940, its collection consisted of over 4000 titles. Moreover, by this time the library's scope had widened considerably and now included many rare books on ethnography, missionary history, and geography, for example Lucy Lloyd's famous Specimens of Bushmen Folklore (1911), Dorothea Bleek's book on the Naron of the Kalahari (1928), Robert Moffat's Missionary Labours (1842), and J. du Plessis' History of Christian Missions in South Africa (1911).

Today, the NZAV is still actively promoting the establishment and maintenance of cultural relations between the Netherlands and South Africa. Its Amsterdam library attracts many students, scholars, journalists, and researchers.

In order to make some of the most interesting titles in its library readily available to scholars all over the world, the NZAV decided to cooperate with IDC Publishers in reproducing these titles on microfiche. The cooperation has resulted in this collection of rare books, which will undoubtedly be of interest to many students of history, ethnography, and historical geography.
